

22 GIRLS DEFY U. S. ORDER OF EVICTION

Washington's Fair War Workers Refuse to Give Up Dormitories

By Universal Service.
Washington, July 25.—The government has a unique strike on its hands. Public opinion is with the strikers, and there seems to be small possibility of the government winning out.

Twenty-two fair war workers constitute the "angry mob." They indignantly refuse to be displaced of their quarters in one of the government dormitories, and say they'll fight it out on this line if it takes all summer.

Governmental economy, which has been the order of the day since the war, has been the order of the day since the war. The government issued an order that the fair war workers should be evicted from their quarters in one of the dormitories, in order that the building could be closed in the interest of economy.

Twenty-two girls were affected and twenty moved. But the remainder have defied themselves, "after orders," and are holding out. The rooms in which the small band of "persons" have been stripped to their waists. All bed linen, towels and maid service have been withdrawn. But this didn't frighten the girls. They still stick, in the ultimatum delivered by a pretty spokeswoman of the strikers.

Government officials are gravely shaking their heads, wondering if after all it wouldn't be better to let the girls stay until their term runs out, on the first of August.

PROBATION AGENTS MEET REVERSE

Whiskey-Laden Truck Departs After Argument, While U. S. Official Goes to Telephone

Life is full of reverses for the probation agent. One day a truckload of liquor was on its way into Boston. Two agents went to the street, near Haymarket square, to watch for it. In the course of time the truck appeared and was halted by the agents.

"What have you got there?" asked one of the agents.
"Whiskey," replied the driver, belligerently.
The driver was informed that he was violating the law and that he must surrender the liquor. Surprisingly enough, the driver failed to surrender the article, and promptly refused. He intimated that he would be "a rap" in turn on perfectly good liquor to anyone without a warrant and suggested that the agents take a rap for themselves.

The matter was discussed for some time, and then one of the agents went in a telephone to call his office. When he returned he found the other agent standing disconsolately on the curb. The truck and its contents were missing. The second agent said the driver had declared he was in a hurry and could not wait for the first agent to return with the warrant.

Fresh From Paris

The simple bodice and side apron are particularly well adapted to the slender contour and there are little sleeves and a narrow panel suspended from the back of the bodice to give further distinction. The panel ends, by the way, in a small in several of the advanced models shown by the couturier. From the top of a close-fitting gray belt trimmed with satin "roses," dark blue cowl feathers fall below the shoulders.

The essential charm and novelty of the white crepe afternoon dress, at the right, lies in its graceful drape of black Chantilly. The simple bodice uses intricate neck, and blouses at the natural waistline all the way around, side the one-piece skirt relies upon the drape of lace to give it fullness. There is no definite departure from these lines in the frock for which we have been seen thus far. Flat crepe crepe frock with black leaves round below and below the extreme edge of brim of the wide white crepe hat faced in black crepe.

CELEBRITY BOOK REVIEWED BY HAPGOOD

"Mirrors of Washington" Hits
Weak Points of Leaders,
Writer Says

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Universal Service Staff Correspondent
Washington, July 23.—A clever analysis of the weak points of Washington's leading men appears in a book to be published tomorrow. It is called "The Mirrors of Washington" and it is written anonymously by a quipped American with a predilection for the failure of other people.

The author has known conspicuous people—it is his specialty—from Roosevelt on. The higher they rise the more roughly they are treated. These who get off best are those whom, like the present ambassador to Great Britain, there is least reason to envy.

Nevertheless, in spite of the severity with which virtues and powers are conceded and the joy with which shortcomings are elaborated, the series of sketches offers qualities in criticism rare in Washington. It is humorous, or rather wit, it has a well-earned memory, it has knowledge of other countries and of books.

MR. REAL BACKGROUND
It has what I believe the realists call background. It alludes to Roosevelt and names him with out referring to them, if you know what I mean.

President Harding, according to the critic, has for his greatest power, modesty. The author's reflection of the attributes and predilections of the president is so good that his desire to reinforce himself, has crowded the strongest criticism. Washington has had in a generation.

Assistant President Wilson the author is almost afraid. He has read and heard about President and the whole chapter is based on over-compensation, inferiority complex, and other things that most of my friends have been talking about since President became the leader of the clever.

The whole explanation of Wilson, according to this author, is that he would be acquired an inferiority complex from thinking that he was not fit for the job. He was not to teach in a girls school. Although Wilson had not been there, President, he knew there was nothing for him to do in the world except himself into life-long arrogance.

Secretary Hughes according to the author, has the best mind connected with government in Washington. His advisers, which used to be so suggest a nation, are now called to suggest a constitutional matter or foreign affairs. The politician do not like him. They feel the man who should stay to be thought, there would be much for it.

The chapter on Colonel House offers somewhat more than the others from consideration. House gets his views of the brotherhood of man and the rest of it, second hand from Wilson.

MAN OVERLOOKED DATES
The author, well read as he is, has overlooked some of the documents and dates in Colonel House's life. While I am on this subject, it may be said that the author's many of manifold difficulties in an attribute of cleverness, and this is in strict conformity with the author's style and attractively clever.

Mr. Taft was a great Court judge for an extremely short time and was neither better nor worse, in those brief months twenty years ago, than twenty others.

With a character like Lodge, whose keynote in room, the author's gifts are at their best. As the advertisement says, the sketch must be read to be appreciated. For the next edition—be sure there will be second contribute this tale.

It is said that Charles William Eliot said: "I have known Cabot Lodge all his life and I never knew him to have a generous emotion." The author makes a delicious conclusion to his sketch by quoting Macaulay's review of Roosevelt's Memoirs: "We have promise to do him, by the blessing of God, full and signal justice."

SOCIAL GAITIES HERE AND THERE

Entertainment Today at Cotuit to Aid Radcliffe

By BETTY ALDEN.

Charity events promise to take up a good part of society's time during this week. This afternoon Mrs. George W. Vanlue of No. 140 Commonwealth avenue is the hostess of an all-Badcliffe entertainment at her summer home in Cotuit. The proceeds of the affair will of course be turned over to the endowment fund of Mrs. Vanlue's alma mater, Miss Marion Vanlue, a member of the Sewing Circle and a senior at Radcliffe.

Many of the North Shore summer colonies are planning to attend the "Midsummer Market," which takes place Wednesday next in Newburyport, on the estate of Mrs. M. S. Burdette. The affair is being held to swell the building fund for Paul's Church and parish house, which was destroyed by fire a year ago.

On Thursday next a bazaar will be held at Cohasset under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church of Cohasset. Mrs. J. Willard Tuckerman, Jr., has offered the use of her estate for the affair.

The Rev. and Mrs. Endicott Peabody of Boston are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith at their summer place, "Stapicott," at Falmouth, Falmouth, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Mead, 10 No. 15 Fuller avenue, Brookline have called around on the estate of their friend, Mrs. J. H. Smith at their summer place, "Stapicott," at Falmouth, Falmouth, Me.

Charles A. Morse, Jr. is among the passengers sailing for Plymouth, Eng., on the Red Star liner Finland. Mr. Morse, a graduate of Harvard 19, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Morse of No. 146 Chestnut Hill road, Chestnut Hill. He will visit France and upon his return to this country about October 1, will enter the army.

Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton have given a dinner last night at their home, 100 Beacon street, and the whole since their return from Northern Africa to the city. The dinner was given in place the Hones have been in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh W. Ogden of Boston are guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Lee Macklin of New York at their summer place, "The Macklin," on the coast of Long Island Sound. The Macklins, by the way, are one of the most important members of the Berkshire Summer colony, and their estate is a constant scene of action for the social life.

Nowell Bell of Watons has taken the Page cottage at Chocoma in the New Hampshire mountains. The Franks, who are also at Chocoma, are the most notable members of the Berkshire Summer colony, and their estate is a constant scene of action for the social life.

Walking tours are a popular form of activity, while the two women, who are at the Bretton Woods Club are attracting many. Traveling at Bretton Woods is being aided with joy by the sportsmen as it will enable followers of this sport to make a round of the resorts, where the swimming is featured. I hear that swimming has been added to the long list of attractions at Crawford Notch this season. Bath houses and a diving board have been erected on the shores of Lake Ammonoosuc, which is hidden from the motor highway by pine woods.

Miss Marion Hill of Boston is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Mead at Falmouth, in the Brooklins.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt and his daughters, the Misses Muriel and Christine Vanderbilt, who are at Southampton, after returning from a trip abroad, are expected to be at Newport. This bit of news about the Vanderbilts is of great interest to the many who make their home at Newport, for it is quite customary for everyone to sit up and take a good wholeness of the famous Mrs. "Willie" Cox to town.

Health Officials Watch for Lowering of Quality as Prices Drop

The crusade against inferior quality of cream which is being pushed by the Boston Health Department in conjunction with the campaign for lower prices, will be continued during the coming week, according to Deputy Health Commissioner Mallows.

Boxes of ice cream are expected to follow the crusade, for in many cases it is found that recent lowering of prices by some stores has been accompanied by a lowering of the standard of quality.

A conference on the ice cream situation will be held by the commission on the necessities of life Wednesday afternoon at the city hall. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the quality of ice cream and the quality of the cream which is being supplied by the commission.

When the officers of the commission were first asked to give the public a better quality of ice cream, it was said that it was not the business of the commission to do so. Since then, however, the commission has been requested to do so, and it has been decided to do so.

The commission has announced that when the examination of the cream is completed, the names of the cream distributors of the city will be published, and the names of those who are not doing a good job will be published.

GIRL RISES FROM LOWLY HOTEL CHECKER TO OPERA SINGER

Today's Winner!

AT EASE! Mrs. Foster Terhune of 36 Marlboro street, Chelsea, believes in being comfortable, hence her graceful pose at Revere Beach. She wins $5 for this photo in the sea beauty contest. Why don't you send in your "sea-vamp" picture to the Pictorial Editor, Boston American. Fla-tura MUST be clear.

COSTLY DIET! This little pup swallowed a necklace of pearls valued at $2,500 and must go under a serious operation. The Dog Hospital (N. Y.) has scores of cases of this nature. Photo shows Dr. George Little administering anesthetic. (K & H.)

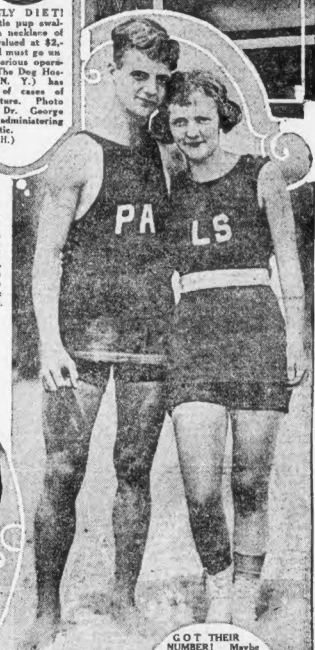

BEWITCHING! The exquisite delicacy of this Edalweiss Swiss organ-dress is enhanced by the deep hem on the skirt, which forms large scallops, and the colorful flowers. The deep square neck is very popular too. (W. W.)

WHIZ! Miss Dorothy Klotz of Indian Hill played a remarkably strong game in the Chicago city championship at Financener. Her sister holds the title. Shown just after a long drive. A field of more than 120 started in the tournament. (U. & U.)

BROWN VELVET! Senorita Pilar Herrera (left), Filippine, of Columbia University, made a freemaker of Camp Fire Girls. Will form body in home land. Was given emblematic head and bracelet. (W. W.)

GOT THEIR NUMBER! Maybe they think they'd get back or perhaps it's because they're proud of their names—that these two seaside companions have their initials saved on their bathing suits. Bruce Robertson and Florence Schramm of Brighton Beach. (Key.)

MRS. WASHINGTON crossing Nantasket. Of course that is only figuratively speaking. She is really Miss Helen Peterson of North Cambridge.

OH GOSH! OH COLLIES! Un girls must have our tea, and its flavor is much improved when it is served in Washington's newest Bohemian rendezvous, atop a big tree. (Int.)

COMEBACK! May K. Brown, former women's national champion, who has challenged Miss Langlen for world's title, played today in the New York State meet at Croton Club, N. Y. Old admirers will flock to meet.

GOOD-BY THREE R'S! "Long" John Ransel of Texas is now "professor" if you please. On faculty of private Raymond Rinsden School to teach boys "ropin' and ridin' n' everythin'". Here shown with three of his eager young pupils. (U. & U.)

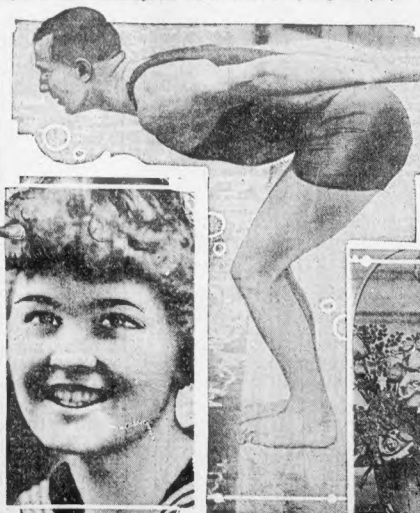

FROLICKING FAIRIES! Every nation has its Mantelet and Old Orchard, and at this time of the season the native beauties flood the sands with their graceful figures. Chiswick Bath, London, is the lure for the fair sea beauties of the British capital, and in this photo they can be seen varying their seaside play with a little rope skipping. The original one-piece bathing suit is very popular there. (Key.)

SHOO FLY BURGLAR! Miss Marguerite McDonald, N. Y. society girl, whose knees were saved her and her mother from being robbed. Throat mirror at him and burglar thought it was a real revolver. He was captured. (Key.)

HERE COMES A SAILOR! Miss Helen Gene Ferthing, niece of the general, who has become the dimpling bride of Edwin A. Craft of Seattle, Wash., a sailor. (W. W.)

FLYING MERMEN! Lady Langer, who last and then won over Gene Balden, U. S. long distance champion, meets latter Wednesday. (U. & U.)

SONG AND ROSE PETALS! She was only a hotel check girl, is the way this caption should start. Miss Esther Hansen has been elevated from obscurity to a place with the Metropolitan Opera company. Worked in hotel to pay her lessons. (K & H.)

BRITISH FRIGHTFULNESS WOMEN TOLD BOGGLY

Tortured Ireland
By JAMES B. CONNOLLY
Former New England Author and Journalist.

The two hundred or so men of the Crown spent two hours and a half wrecking and burning the Dalys' home. Everything went into a bonfire as the law—bedding, furniture, linen, their collection of literary books, the presentation sovereign given their dead uncle, who had been a man of note in Ireland. Books, letters and precious articles—all went into flames.

One of the girls tried to slip off with her sister Midge's coat and furs, but an alert English officer saw her and she was taken into the same.

There was a typical torture campaign for a case like the Dalys, who dared in any locality that the people of Ireland had a right to govern themselves.

East and west of Ireland are many families like the Dalys, who are not to be scared by threats of death, and so these campaigns of torture in the hope of breaking their spirit. But the English soldiers can cut them into little pieces and the Dalys will not give in to their derision at all.

After their home was wrecked the Dalys looked around for a new home.

Irish Women Alive Only Because of Edith Cavell

Sombody may wonder why they did not shoot one or more of the Dalys women and make an end of them. They probably would if they could get away with it. The English spread so much propaganda around the world of the frightfulness of the Germans in shooting Edith Cavell that now in Ireland they are careful about shooting women.

They have shot women in Ireland, but they were poor women of whom the larger world never heard; and so they do not shoot women of the Dalys standing; they torture them.

What you may say, just that. This is a bare record. I have heard of Irish diplomacy praised, and there is no argument as to the efficiency of English propaganda, but their military certainly do seem to be daft.

This officer seemed to think that military necessity required that the women of the Dalys family should spend the night within the bare walls of their ruined home.

The Dalys women might be dependent, but they were not thereby despised. They fought and won the battle to say where they should spend the night; but they were people who should be watched. Then the five Dalys women drove to the Dalys' home.

They were accompanied by a large force of mixed troops.

On the day after the Dalys' home was wrecked, the Dalys' maid was there, and she was carrying away some of the debris to see could she find some little trinkets they valued.

Four of the military men told her to get along. She said she would not, then the Dalys' maid was there, and she was carrying away some of the debris to see could she find some little trinkets they valued.

She had been put under a doctor's care after the military got through with her. Great fighting men! Rather the Chivalry of England.

REMEMBER EDITH CAVELL.

HOMESPUN SUIT COSTS PASTOR HIS PULPIT

Spit in Church Follows Forced Resignation of the Clergyman

Worcester, July 25.—"Forgive them, for they know not what they do" was the text of a sermon preached in the Jamestown Baptist Church by Rev. Edward MacPherson, just after he had tendered his resignation as pastor, effective at any time his congregation see fit.

Mr. MacPherson's resignation was demanded by one faction of the congregation because he was "not up to the social standing of the church and was wearing a homespun suit instead of a Prince Albert." The church group insists that he stay, declaring that although he does wear homespun, he is "delivering the goods."

TAKE ACTION TONIGHT.

The dispute will be settled tonight when the congregation holds a special meeting to act on the resignation.

Deacon William P. Storing, who leads the opposition, declares that Pastor MacPherson never stayed after church to attend Sunday school sessions and failed to make enough pastoral visits among his flock.

"If the congregation voted tonight to accept the resignation," said Frederick W. O'Brien, chief of Pastor MacPherson's supporters, "sixty or seventy of us will erect a tent and have Mr. MacPherson preach to us there during the summer and fall months. Before winter we will make some other provision for him."

MADE TROLLEY CARS.

Pastor MacPherson lives at No. 419 Park street, Worcester. He will take in boarders to clear out an existence, his husband's ministerial salary being only $20 a week.

He was ordained while working at the Osgood Bradley shop as a mechanic, and although he makes much more money there, he gave up making trolley cars to preach the gospel. If he loses in the present dispute, he may return to making trolley cars.

Pastor MacPherson has been at the Jamestown Baptist Church here for several years, and what was his home life like? He has a wife and two children, a son and a daughter. He has a home life like that of many other ministers.

CHAMPION REDS NEXT VICTIMS FOR BRAVES

By NICK FLATLEY

Altoona, Pa., July 25.—A cleanup in the Cincinnati series is the aim of the batting Braves as they spend westward.

Having downed Brooklyn after one of their now famous late-inning rallies, the title aspirants from Beantown, expect to knock out Moravia's former world's champions right on the old tower, first, last and all the way through, and then take up the task with the remaining Western members of the National League.

They hoped for and believed they had earned a much better break than the recent Pittsburgh series provided, and the fact that the Pirates crushed three of their games has served not to discourage the Braves but to increase their winning urge.

As the rally clicked under their special car and the other stopping place drew nearer, "the old hit," "the old pop" and all the other old things that are said to play their part in winning baseball, were produced in many ways, and after an exhibition game at Altoona, they were faring to go against the old side.

There are no double-headers scheduled on this date, and the Braves not in all their games and was nearly all of them on the old side.

Manager Mitchell is quietly confident that his performance will do things to the Pirates when Pittsburgh is visited after the Cincinnati game.

He points out that most of his men were served up, it being their first big clash, a lot of them had never participated in.

"There came through remarkable," he explains it. "And with a little luck would have won four of the five games. But losing them doesn't mean a thing."

"The Braves proved that they have the class and the experience of the Pirates and their pitching in the long run is better."

"There never were any better pitched ball games than Warren and Pittsburgh showed and any reputation will certainly tumble the Pirates or any other team."

"We have been beating the other Western teams more regularly than the Pittsburgh outfit, and all we need to do is keep right on and we'll be nearly up there when we get home again."

"We have a fine chance to pick up with the Giants are playing the Pirates. If we can get that one out of them and go into Pittsburgh and get a series, that'll mark the season looking quite 'rosy.' And not an athlete on the team but can't see that that Mitch hopes for is as good as settled already."

PIRATES HOME FOR BIG GAMES WITH GIANTS

McGraw Clan Confident of Cutting Down Lead of Gibson's Team

By Sam Crane

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 25.—Manager McGraw and his Giants seem to have the habit of arriving in Pittsburgh whenever local baseball enthusiasm is at fever heat, and this visit was no exception to the rule of the past several years.

The rivalry between the teams is just as deep as in the days of Fred Clarke and "Boss" Wagner, both of whom are out of active participation in the sport, but who still love it with their old fervor.

I can imagine the good old veteran, wherever they are, watching the Pirates' scores every day and rooting, rooting and rooting for their former team to win the pennant, doubtless, or when their pet is lost, for years when they win.

The Pirates' fans are a unit in the support of the local team. All one hears on the street corners, in hotels, resorts and homes is talk and comment on the ability of "Gibby" and his helpers to win the National League pennant. They are all ready on that one subject.

The remarkable bounce passed through a terrible strain while their Pirates were in New York playing the Giants and during their Boston series.

The fans were all over the place when the McGraw clan rolled into the city early today.

The Giants are not welcome visitors here. They are feared—that's all.

Ever since McGraw took charge of the New York team, twenty years ago, when, clearly, Maribow was the star pitcher of the universe and the Giant leader had a whole team of stars, the diamond battles between the New York team and the Pirates have become historical.

The Pirates' fans are a unit in the support of the local team. All one hears on the street corners, in hotels, resorts and homes is talk and comment on the ability of "Gibby" and his helpers to win the National League pennant. They are all ready on that one subject.

The remarkable bounce passed through a terrible strain while their Pirates were in New York playing the Giants and during their Boston series.

The fans were all over the place when the McGraw clan rolled into the city early today.

NEW WITNESSES FOR TRIAL OF BLACK SOX

Mysterious William Maharg and Joe Giden Are Men the State Depends Upon

Chicago, July 25.—Two star witnesses are still to be introduced by the state in the trial of the seven "Black Sox" and four alleged gamblers accused of "fixing" the 1919 world's series.

By these two men the state expects to clinch the conspiracy charges. One is Maharg, the man who went to Mexico and induced Bill Horan to come back and turn state's evidence.

He will be subject to a severe cross-examination, as the defense will attempt to make him admit that the fix was made by the White Sox team, for evidence leading to the conviction of the conspiracy is the motive for his interest in the case.

Through his story, the defense will make another attempt to show that the fix was made by the White Sox team, for evidence leading to the conviction of the conspiracy is the motive for his interest in the case.

When court resumed tomorrow morning the state will make a new drive to set the record straight, as the defense will attempt to make him admit that the fix was made by the White Sox team, for evidence leading to the conviction of the conspiracy is the motive for his interest in the case.

DOES BASEBALL TODAY BEAT OLD TIME GAME

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

There has been considerable discussion recently regarding the quality of baseball being played in the major leagues. I have had perhaps two scores of requests from fans to decide whether the baseball being played in the major leagues now is as good as it was at some other time.

Naturally few require it to the same period, and it is easy to read between the lines of almost any such question.

The thing which strikes me is this: that almost everyone who asks the question thinks that the game has been better than it ever was in the past.

The fact that almost everyone who asks the question thinks that the game has been better than it ever was in the past.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

The business barometer points to fairer weather. Distinct improvement has already developed in a few industries, the most important of which are textile and shoe manufacturing. New York, Chicago and other metropolitan cities are overcast with business, and it is not until the middle of the week that clearing is expected. Merchants are better today than they were a few days ago. As most customers know exactly what they want, merchants find that carrying unsold meagre stocks has its disadvantages.

In the security markets there has been quiet but persistent absorption of both stocks and bonds. Investors are encountering more difficulty in conducting their operations. As money rates are now declining appreciably, the whole complexion of the investment market may undergo a radical change. A similar transformation may easily occur in quite a few of the other markets.

Nearly every major development has been due to fluctuations in the money market. The latter has been the main factor in determining the movement of the most important securities. The heavy response of the leading foreign powers to President Harding's invitation to confer on reducing armaments. The getting together of the high-level British authorities and the Irish leaders. Incidentally, although published reports have been rather disappointing, private advice from the most influential sources is optimistic over the final outcome.

Germany has made notable progress in arranging to meet the heavy reparations program. $1,300,000,000 in new bonds has been issued, and the country is showing gratification in the highest quarters.

Conditions in Britain have brightened since the currency crisis has ended. Unhappily, the situation in various countries is still gloomy. At least it is not so gloomy as it was in the days of the currency crisis.
